Series

DEEP WOODS

This series began with Pioneer Potpourri, a true account compiled by Dawn Batterbee-Miller from the newspaper columns of Rosalind Batterbee Bundy Westcott in the 1950s. Mrs. Westcott served as an envoy for those hardy souls who braved Mid-Michigan's deep woods during a time of great hardship in search of hearth and home. Mrs. Westcott's consuming interest in early settlement led her from farm to farm and from home to home collecting first person accounts of pioneer life. Pioneer Potpourri is a chronicle of those stories as told by the people who lived them.

Pioneer Potpourri

ROSALIND BATTERBEE BUNDY WESTCOTT
COMPILED BY DAWN BATTERBEE MILLER

Life in the wild 19th century Midwest was demanding at best. Men slogged through waist deep snow in search of a home. Women lugged barrels of flour over rugged roads to supply meals for families. Five year old boys herded cattle all day to sustain the family homestead. Yet the westward call thrived. A veteran can homestead as much as a hundred sixty acres, it was said. Anyone can set up claim stakes on an eighty-wonderful country-good farm land-beautiful-a railroad coming through soon from the south. And so the people came-hardy souls with the strength to face the perils of pioneer life. Some who came were unable to stand the strain of work and weather, and after a few seasons they moved on to fairer fields. But where they had been, they left a rude cabin, a cleared field or a small orchard to provide a better foothold for those who inevitably followed. These then were the men and women who built our nation, their stories preserved in early Midwest style for future generations in this volume.

Believe in the Magic*

DEE LOUIS SCOTT

This book is a journey through the events in Mattie Fisher's life. There are also the life lessons gained from those events. Mattie was born at a time in history when being black and female was a double curse. You had to look very hard to find any human or legal rights. Mattie stood her ground. She was confident and fierce, always pushing forward, striving to do things she wanted to do. She turned a deaf ear to those who thought they could dictate her life. Mattie's story is very powerful and inspirational; her spirit tenacious and infectious. She encouraged all the women she met to never settle for less than they deserved. Let the tenacity of one woman inspire you to the greatness you were created for.

MORE ABOUT DAWNA HETZLER

Dawna is an author, speaker, and bible study teacher. She is a speaker for Stonecroft Ministries, and speaks at women's connection groups. She also speaks at women's retreats encouraging women to develop healthy relationships. She states, "I find true joy investing time in others." Dawna founded a women's group called the "Jericho Girls." The group meets to discuss the walls they build around their hearts that prohibit relationships with others. After forming the group, Dawna realized that she too had walls. So she began to write about her journey with "The Jericho Girls." This journal inspired her to write her book, Walls of a Warrior. It is Dawna's vision that reading about her journey will inspire women to begin their own "Jericho Girls" groups and break down walls of hearts worldwide.

Dawna was born and raised in Southern California. In 1989 she married her high school sweetheart, David, and eventually moved to Colorado. Currently she resides in Elizabeth, Colorado with her two rescue Siberian Huskies, Hanah and Zorro. Dawna is the broker and owner of her own real estate firm, New Dawn Realty. Dawna enjoys golf, motorcycle riding with her husband, cooking, praying, preparing lesson plans for her Bible study group, and simply spending time with her 'sister-girls'.
